Two High-Toned Indians Fight a Duel.

From the Chicago Tribune.

STANDING ROCK, D. T., Oct. 18.—A somewhat exciting event occurred here yesterday. It was no less than an indian duel. On the east bank of the Missouri river, just across from this post, about 500 Indians and squaws were yesterday engaged in butchering their beef—160 head of fine iat cattle, just received from the beef contractor, Col. Paxton, who was present, at the time, at least, until the affair of the duel made it too hot for him. Wild Bear is a scout at the post, enlisted regularly into the military service. He is rather small in stature, but muscular and agile as a cat. He is as brave, too, as any man can be, and, as far as I can learn, is mild, quiet and incoffensive. He was enzaged in outobering his beef, when Crooked Neck, another Indian, taunted him with being the friend and servand of the military, and an enemy to bis own race.

and inoffensive. He was engaged in outobering his beef, when Crooked Neck, another Indian, taunted him with being the friend and servant of the military, and an enemy to his own race. He said to him further: "You ought not to come here to get our beef. Go to the military to get your beef. You nelpod to get Kill Eagle to come in and surrender."

Wild Bear turned to Col. Johnson, Acting Indian Agent, who was present, and remarked: "I don't like what that Indian savs to me."

"Well." said Crooked Neck, "how are you going to help yourself?"

I don't know what reply Wild Bear made to this question, but, in a very few seconds, he and Crooked Neck had ceased to butcher beef, and were engaged with great determination in trying to butcher each other.

They stood face to face, about fitteen paces apart, each with a good Winchester rifle, Orooked Neck got in two shots before Wild Bear fired, and savanced on Wild Bear, while the latter simply danced, or jumped, first to the right and then to the left, to avoid the shots of Crooked Neck. Wild Bear fired twice without effect, but the third shot was a hit, and Crooked Neck, wild Bear fired twice without effect, but the thord shot was a hit, and Crooked Neck fell to the ground. Wild Bear awanced on him, and fired a second shot into his bead.

Crooked Neck had the reputation of being a quarrelsome follow, and the Indians generally consider his death a good riddance. He was certainly a brave fellow, however. Wild Bear came back to the post and undressed himself, then marched in front of his lodge, and invited all the friends of Crooked Neck to come up and get revence according to the Indians generally consider his death a good riddance. He was certainly a brave fellow, however. Wild Bear came back to the post and undressed himself, then marched in front of his lodge, and invited all the friends of Crooked Neck to come up and get revence according to the Indian custom. He was brought before Gen Carlin to make his statement, which was as follows: "I have done something that I was
